

IN THE SENATE.

The Presidential Campaign Opened in earnest—The Tariff Discussed.

WASHINGTON, D. C., June 28.—The presidential campaign was fairly started in the senate to-day on the basis of Mr. Hale's resolution asserting the great benefits resulting to the people of the United States from the Republican policy of "Protection," and questioning the possible effect of the Democratic policy of a "tariff for revenue only." Mr. Hale gave a history from his point of view of the recent Chicago convention so far as the tariff plank of the platform is concerned; stating that it was framed so as to suit the candidate; and declaring the issue between the two parties had thus been made up, and the fight would be waged on that issue until decided by the suffrages of the people next November.

Mr. Vest, on the part of the Democracy, accepted the challenge, and had much to say as to the operation of the McKinley act in increasing the cost of drygoods and hardware, in reducing wages, and in causing strikes and labor troubles. He also commented upon the choice of the new chairman of the Republican National committee as being in line with the policy of encouraging monopolies.

During Mr. Vest's speech on the McKinley bill he alluded to the existing labor troubles at Carnegie's Homestead Iron Works near Pittsburgh. And yet, he said, that gentleman (Mr. Carnegie) who had telegraphed from his castle in Scotland, congratulations to President Harrison on his re-election, had arrayed his police and armed and equipped them to put down his own laborers and workmen and had surrounded his establishment with an eleven foot wall. For what purpose? To protect himself against the people of the United States under this iniquitous system, and now the newspapers of the country (Mr. Vest said) were full of rumors of war between Mr. Carnegie's company and its own laborers. Continuing Mr. Vest said the Republican party had placed at the head of its national committee another of the same brood of politicians. Mr. Campbell, he said, was a tool of monopoly. He was the ablest and most pliant instrumentality in the hands of Armour in order to rob the people, and especially the cattle raisers of the west.

Mr. Hale said: As to the selection of the chairman of the Republican national committee, the senator from Missouri has sought to bring reproach on Mr. Campbell because of his association as counsel with great monopolies and great interests. Has it gone out of the mind of the senator that that great convention of his in Chicago was marshaled and dominated and controlled from beginning to end by that great leader of the Cleveland hosts, ex-Secretary Whitney? Does he claim that Mr. Whitney is in no way associated or connected with any great interest?

Mr. Vest—Does the senator say that he is?

Mr. Hale—The greatest of all the trusts, the Standard Oil company, is the interest that controlled the Chicago convention.

Mr. Vest—I ask the senator categorically whether he charges that Mr. Whitney has any connection whatever with the Standard Oil company.

Mr. Hale—I do not make any charge against Mr. Whitney.

Mr. Vest—Then it is utterly unfair and unparliamentary to make an insinuation in which a senator is unwilling to put in so many words. I deny it. I deny to Mr. Whitney's own statement. He has no interest whatever in the Standard Oil Company. His brother-in-law is a stockholder, but I have yet to learn that a man is responsible for his brother-in-law.

Mr. Hale—Do you say, in terms, that Mr. Campbell has a dollar of interest in the great trust which you have referred to?

Mr. Vest—I affirm here, on my personal knowledge, that Mr. Campbell is and has been for years the paid lawyer of P. D. Armour, attending to all his law business; that he followed my beef committee to St. Louis and Chicago, advising Mr. Armour, and that he is the man who instituted the movement on the part of Mr. Armour to refuse to obey the subpoena of the senate.

Mr. Hale—I suppose that Mr. Campbell, who is a very able lawyer, has clients in many domains of business. He is none the worse for that. I did not assert that the ex-Secretary Whitney has any interest in the Standard Oil company. His denial of that is enough for me. But you cannot make the country believe that the great Standard Oil trust did not have a controlling hand and voice in shaping the resolutions of the Chicago convention.

The morning hour here expired.

PARLIAMENT ENDED.

Synopsis of the Queen's Speech Proroguing the British Parliament.

LONDON, June 28.—The Queen's speech proroguing Parliament says: "The time has arrived when it is expedient that the electoral body of the country be consulted by the assemblage of a new Parliament. I have, therefore, summoned you for prorogation at an earlier period than usual. I am glad to record that my friendly relations with foreign powers remain unaltered. Treaties have been duly ratified referring the differences with the United States with respect to the Bering sea to arbitration."

Referring to the bills passed at the session just ended, the speech says that the arrangements that Parliament has made enabling workmen to purchase agricultural holdings will increase the class of cultivating owners, which is of great importance to the state. The application to Ireland of the educational measures recently adopted in Great Britain will confer great benefits upon the people of that country.

The speech refers to the ratification of the action of the Brussels conference for the suppression of the slave trade, though noting the French reservations respecting the maritime slave trade and in conclusion says: "In closing this Parliament, which has been usually laborious and highly fruitful of beneficial legislation, I thank you for the assiduous performance of your momentous duties during the last six years, and I heartily commend you to the favor of Almighty God."

After hearing the queen's speech in the house of lords, the members of the commons returned to their house and filed past the speaker, the Rt. Hon. A. W. Peel, each shaking hands with that gentleman. They then passed out, and the Parliament elected in 1886 was ended.

BRILLIANT.

All Sorts of Local News and Gossip from the Glass City.

The milk trust, through Hugh Giffen, one of its members, has filed a complaint before Squire D. W. Cooper charging Mrs. M. Rowles, who is not a member, with delivering milk on Sunday. She delivers milk every day, including Sunday, fresh from her dairy, and for less money than the trust fixed as the price. The object of the association is not to preserve the sanctity of the Sabbath at all, but as Mrs. Rowles has a large and increasing patronage, the trust proposes to shut her out by prosecution that partakes so much of the character of persecution that it will not be surprising if it is the trust that is shut out in the end. There is considerable feeling manifested over this matter, and the war of extermination is likely to be a boomerang.

The steel works will close down Thursday night unless the new scale is signed before that time. The local lodge of the Amalgamated Association would have agreed to the request of the company to run till the end of the week on the company's proposition, but a point was raised which resulted in sending a representative to headquarters at Pittsburgh and the answer came back that there were a dozen requests of that kind in, and to agree to one meant to agree to all, and it could not be done. This was a disappointment to both the management and workmen here, but will be faithfully adhered to.

Messrs. W. C. Bergundthal and O. P. Mason will go out to Hoge's stock farm, near Mt. Pleasant, this morning. By the way, Mr. Hoge's Kentucky Bird, with a mark of 2:20, is in the pink of condition this season and will probably lower that record eight or ten seconds. LaBel, by St. Bel, is also going well and will trot in the 30 list before snow flies.

The Democratic county ticket creates no enthusiasm at all here, except the nominee for auditor. Henderson is quite popular, but even the Democrats ridicule a portion of their ticket. This doesn't always count in the heat of a campaign like this one, but there is much inquiry among Democrats here now as to who the candidates are.

The board of trade is carefully nursing the project of starting a new stamping works, a new flint glass factory, and keeping one of the window houses in operation here, and two if not all three of the projects are likely to succeed.

Thomas E. Shelby, manager of the Fostoria Glass Company, who severs his connection at the close of this week, was in town yesterday. He will be succeeded in the factory by Jacob Kerns, a former Bellaire boy.

Henry M. Davies, clerk of the courts, Frank B. Archer, county treasurer, and a number of Republican politicians spent Monday night here and went to Barnesville to mingle with the Democrats yesterday.
